SONS OF VETERANS.

Arrangements for the Seventh Annual Encampment of the Indiana Division,

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. TERRE HAUTE, Ind., June 25 .- The local committee having in charge the preparations for the seventh annual encampment of the Indiana Division of the Sons of Veterans have about concluded the preparation of the programme for the three days. On Tuesday evening, July 4, the division council meets at headquarters to audit books, etc.; Wednesday, July 5, at 9 A. M., the encampment will be opened for bustness. At 4 P. M. there will be a street parade. All of the day Thursday will be devoted to encampment business. The installation of officers will take place on Friday. The evenings will be devoted to camp fires and entertainments for visiting brothers. The auxiliary society of ladies will hold its annual encampment at the same time. It is expected that at least twenty-five hundred visitors will be in the city. The business sessions will be held in the opera house. Half-fare rates have been secured on the railroads. Among those who have accepted invitations to be present are the following: Governor Matthews, ex-Governor Chase, Col. I. N. Walker, O. R. Weaver, R. M. Smock of Indianapolis, Department Commander James T. Johnston, G. A. R., and Marion Hall, commander-inchief of the Sons of Veterans.

EX-TRUSTEE FOUND GUILTY.

J. N. Higgins, of Shelby County, Fined 850 and Given One Day in Jail.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. SHELBYVILLE, Ind., June 25 .- The two days' trial of Jasper N. Higgins, ex-trustee of Washington township, resulted Saturday afternoon in a verdict of guilty. and his fine was fixed at $50 and sentenced to one day in jail. Higgins was the only Republican trustee in this county who was caught in the trap of the school-supply man. The other trustee indicted at the same time with Higgins and Duty, of Liberty, was Cyrus Montgomery, of Union township. Montgomery disappeared just before the indictment against him was found by the grand jury, and although it is reported that he had been seen several times in Indianapolis, he has not yet been brought back here for trial. At the time be disappeared it was strongly hinted that if he were brought to trial evidence of a conspiracy would be brought to light. It is estimated that Shelby county trustees alone issued over $10,000 worth of fraudulent notes. There is in the Big Four freight depot a big pile of school supplies addressed to Cyrus Montgomery, trustee of Union township, and they are not likely to be called for soon.

Affairs of the Bedford Bank. Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

BEDFORD, Ind., June 25 .- At a second meeting of creditors af the Bedford Bank yesterday Mr. Webb Parker was appointed as trustee to assist Mr. W. C. Winstandley, the president of the concern. In accordance with the agreement a $20,000 bond is to be furnished by Mr. Winstandley this week. The committee appointed at a previous meeting will meet on the first Saturday of each month. Payments are to be made as fast as possible. with the limit of not less than 10 per cent. at a time, while the entire limit for a settlement in full has been placed at nine months. It is not known whether Mr. Winstandley will resume the business after a settlement has been made.

SET OF QUEER QUESTIONS

Novel Inquiries Propounded to Clerks by a Congressional Committee.

Required to Unravel Intricacies of Consenguinity and Affinity That Will Worry Some of the Employee Into Insanity.

WASHINGTON, June 25. - Clerks in all the official departments of the government here have received a set of questions which they are required to answer for the information of the congressional committee which has just entered upon what is said to be a two years' investigation into the workings of the executive departments of the government in Washington. The inquiries propounded have struck the majority of the clerical force with mingled consternation and amusement. The intricacies of consanguinity and affinity they are required to unravel are quite beyond the powers of many of them. The first two questions propounded on these topics are comparatively easy. Each government employe is required to declare whether he has a son or daughter, a father or mother, a brother or sister, an uncle or aunt, a cousin, nephew or niece, or grandfather or grandmother, in the service of the Washington departments. After he or she has successfully overcome these preliminary difficulties, it is then made necessary for each to declare whether there is in the covernment service any great-grandfather or great-grandmother, or great-grandson or great-granddaughter, and then follows a bewildering list of great-un cles' sons and great-uncles' daughters, great-uncles' grandsons and great-uncles' granddaughters, and consins of every degree. After these come questions as to degrees of affinity, and these are the most perplexing of all. After the gentle female clerk she has no grandson-in-law, no granddaughter-in-law, or grandnephew or grandniece-in-law in any of the government departments, she or her fellow-clerk of the opposite sex is required to make declaration that there is not, to the best of her or his knowledge or belief, any person in any branch of the government service bearing towards herself or himself the following relations: "Great-grandfatherin-law. great grandmother - in - law, great - grandson - in - law, great - granddaughter-in-law, great - uncle - in - law, son-in-law of uncle, daughter-in-law of great uncle, gandson-in-law of great uncle, granddaughter of great uncle, son-in-law of first cousin, daughter-in-law of cousin, son-in-law of nephew, daughter-in-law of nephew, son-in-law of niece or daughterin-law of niece."

It is the abstructive calculations of heredity involved in the answers to these questions, particularly from clerks from Kentucky, Virginia and Georgia and other States where family ties are of perplexing intricacy, which, it is said, is causing some of the clerks unavailing bewilderment.

The Rescue Crevasse Widening.

WASHINGTON, June 25 .- The following is furnished to the United Press by the chief of the Weather Bureau from the observer at New Orleans:

"Latest reports say the Rescue crevasse is five hundred feet wide and widening rapidly. About twenty large plantations and some smaller places, aggregating some twenty-five to thirty miles along the river and some fifteen miles back, will be more or less under water, entailing a loss of about $1,000,000 in crops in Iberville, St. James and St. John's parishes. The overflow will cross the country to Bayon Fountaine and Machhie, ultimately reaching Lakes Maurepas and Pontchartrain. The maximum stage has doubtless been reached. Local reports all indicate a stationary or falling river, due to the cre-

Even Chance of Escaping Cholera. WASHINGTON, June 25 .- Surgeon-general Wyman, of the Marine Hospital Service, referring to the outlook for cholera in the United States during the present summer, said: "We have an even chance of escaping the cholera altogether this year, Should it arrive it will certainly not become epidemic. Its non-appearance thus far proves that no germs have lived over the winter in this country as it was feared might happen. The prospect now is much better than I expected it would be at this time. However, it should not be forgotten that the disease did not reach the United States last year until August. There is plenty of time for trouble yet." It cholera should get a foothold in this country. Dr. Wyman thinks that it would be quickly stamped

THE AMERICAN DERBY.

Victory of Boundles: Discussed by Jockeys and the Owner of the Horse.

CHICAGO, June 25 .- The victory of Boundless in the American Derby, yesterday, is generally acknowledged to have been on its merits. The fearful delay at the post may have injured the chances of some horses more than others, but Boundless's conquest was so decisive that malcontents have little cause to complain. Ex-jockey Tom O'Hara, who was standing at the eighth pole, says of the finish: "When they passed me St. Leonards was in front by half a length, and, while not being ridden hard, was being urged a little. Then came Clifford, who was then almost gone. A full length behind him and on the outside was Boundless, with Garrison holding him back. I immediately turned to the gentleman by my side, and said: 'Boundless will win; he will catch that other horse as soon as Garrison lets go, and if it comes to finish fighting nobody can beat Garrison.' But no such contest was necessary. Garrison let the horse loose and be moved forward as if the others had stopped. It looked as if he could have won by a great deal more than be did." There are others, however, who think Garrison's riding was responsible for the result; that the great jockey comprehended the situation from the start, nursed his colt, and got more out of him than any other jockey could do. This is what Fred Taral has to say: "The delay at the p is what killed St. Leonards. He is a bundie of nerves, and every false start weakened him. After they had been there for an hour and a half, he was trembling like a leaf, if the race should be ran over 1

Mr. Cushing recently bought out his partner, Mr. Orth, and this left him without any money, so he had nothing with which to back his colt. Speaking of his instructions to jockey Garison owner Cushing says: "I had all the faith in the world in Garrison's ability, but I knew my colt and thought I could instruct anybody how to ride him. 1 was afraid Garrison might not ride to orders. We walked over to the stable and talked the race over. I told him to stay up where he belonged but not to make too much use of the colt. The colt would make him believe he could run over the moon the first half mile, and then would want to loaf, and unless the rider kne whis characteries he would think the colt was quitting. I told him to stick the steel into him if he began to loaf, as he could go the distance all right, but not to use the whip, as that would make him swerve. Garrison rode precisely according to orders." Mr. Cushing declares that if Lookout had not sulked he would have won the race by a

COWBOY BERRY IN THE LEAD.

Crossed the Mississippi at Dubuque Yesterday Noon and Is Now Racing Toward Chicago.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

DUBUQUE, Ia., June 25 .- Berry still has a good lead in the cowboy race, and the man who beats him into Chicago will have to do some hard riding. Berry arrived here at 9:30 o'clock this morning and rode across the bridge to Illinois at 12:30. His horses are fresh and in excellent condition. Rattlesnake Pete pulled in at 12:30 and left after a rest of two hours. Gillespie got in at 1 15 and departed at 2:50. Jones arrived at 5:30 and started out at 7. Albright and Muddleton are hopelessly in the rear. They left Manchester at 2 o'clock this afternoo. traveling in company, and are not expected to reach Dubuque before to-morrow.

Made of Thread. While many people would pass by the exhibit of a certain thread firm, I was attracted by its beauty and moved to speculate on the time and energy spent in making the work exhibited. Prizes had been offered for the most beautiful, intricate, etc., designs, either knitted or crocheted, from this particular kind of thread; in response, women everywhere tried for the prizes and sent in stacks, literally, of their work so that not more than a fourth of it can be displayed at one time. The most notable specimen is the knit dress done by a Rochester, N. Y., woman, who used No. 19 needles and No. 60, 70, 80, 90 and 100 cotton. The knitting occupied tifteen months and consumed seven miles of thread. The dress is made-up over yellow silk, If she happens to get the first prize, she will, in a measure, be paid for her labor; otherwise, it has been a foolish outlay. The rival to this is the crocheted dress made by a Somerville, Mass., girl, who is an invalid and hoped to win money for medical treatment. Besides these large pieces there is a bewildering variety of laces and decorative Braddock Wire Works Shut Down, Braddock, Pa., June 25 .- The Braddock wire works, at Rankin, shut down last evening in all departments. This suspension is indefinite. The firm says it has no orders, and has no idea when it will resume. The company will make all needed repairs and some important improvements to the plant in the next month or two. That the company means what it says is evidenced by the fact that it paid off its employes yesterday. There are over seven hundred of them. A number of men have made preparations, with their families, to leave for other parts in search of work.

Crops Injured by Hot Winds. St. Paul, Minn., June 25.-Crop reports from the Dakotas and northern Minnesota during the last forty-eight hours have been of a very discouraging nature. The sun has been very hot and high winds have been blowing. The ground has thus be come parched and the growing grain is wilting in the fields. In places farmers will hardly be able to harvest above an acre. Expert wheat men say that the damage done already is from 25 to 50 per cent, and the average harvest west of the Red river well will hardly be 50 per cent. of QUINCY. Ills., June 25 .- Edward H. Todd, nephew and partner of F. M. Miller in the omnibus and tallyho manufacturing business, and one of the most prominent citizens of Quincy, committed suicide today by blowing out his brains in his bachelor apartments in the Newcomb Hotel. He came from Chicago at 2 o'clock this morning and went to his rooms. At noon to-day the chambermaid found him seated in a chair dead, with a pistol lying beside him. He left no word or note of any kind, and the affair is still a profound mystery.

Lecture by Dr. Briggs. ASBURY PARK, N. J. June 25. - Five thousand people assembled in the Auditorium this evening to hear an address by Charles A. Briggs. Prof. Briggs's subject was "Church Unity." In opening his address he said that there may be people who asked by what right he preached the gospel. To all such he would say that every Christian had the right to preach the wospel of God. and that he would do so as long as he had the power and the strength. "To dispel any doubts or comments I will call my discourse a lecture." He made no further reference to his recent church troubles.

Experiments Show It Is from 140 to 150 Pounds Per Square Foot, the top of the night.

Engineering News. The load which is produced by a dense crowd of persons is generally taken at eighty to one hundred pounds per square foot, and is considered to be the greatest uniformly distributed load for which a floor need be proportioned. That this value may be largely exceeded in an actual crowd was pointed out by Prof. W. C. Kernot, of the Melbourne University. Australia, in a recent paper before the Victorian Institute of Engineers. In an actual trial a class of students, averaging 153.5 pounds each in weight, were crowded in a lobby containing 1,823 square feet, making an average noor load of 134.7 pounds. There was still room to have placed another man, which would have brought up the loading to 143.1 pounds per square foot. Professor Kernot also quoted Stoney, who placed hity-eight Irish labor ers, averaging 145 pounds each in weight, in an empty ship decknouse measuring fifty-seven square feet floor area. This was a load of 147.4 pounds per square foot. In another test, with seventy-three laborers crowded into a hut nine feet by eight feet eight inches, Stoney produced a load of 148 pounds per square root, and estimated that two or three more men could have been squeezed in. It appears from these experiments that while the figures ordinarily assumed of eighty to one hundred pounds are sufficiently correct on spaces on which there is no cause to induce the collection of great crowds, larger figures, say 140 to 150 pounds per square foot, should be used for railway stations and platforms, entrances and exits to places of public assemblies or of office buildings, bridge side salks, pavements over vaults and other places where dense crowds are

Terrell, of Texas, wrote on John Wilkes Booth after the assassination of Lincoln must have made a powerful impression on the mind of Mr. Cleveland. The poem is the Judge's only known claim to distinction and his recent appointment as minister to Turkey must be due to it. Here are two of the glittering stanzas:

He hath written his name In bright letters of fame In the pathway to Liberty's portal; And the serfs who now blame Will crimson with shame When they learn they have cursed an immortal He hath died for the weal

Of a world 'neath the heel Of too many a merciless Nero, But while yet there is steel Every tyrant shall feel That God's vengeance but waits for its hero.

The demand upon the President to convene Congress at once becomes louder, but there is no indication that Mr. Cleveland hears it. He knows better, perhaps, than some of his volunteer advisers what kind of men make up the majority in the next Congress.

The South Carolina Liquor Law,

Washington lest. How the new plan will work toward diminishing the evils of the liquor traffic and replenishing the revenues of the State reit may be said that no legislation which forces capital out of a State and inhibits as unlawful for individuals a business which the State makes lawful for itself, can have a sound economic basis. Absolute prohibition rests upon a principle that, however erroneous it may be, is nevertheless well defined. It is simed at the destruction of an industry. The South Carolina law maintains the industry, to a certain extent, but debars all citizens from its pursuit, ignores the virtues of well-regulated license, and puts the State in a grotesque attitude, as a retailer of half-pint drinks, which all becomes a self-respecting Common wealth.

"Heart Fallure."

"Died for want of breath" would not be much more of a travesty if given as the cause of death in a physician's certificate. "Heart failure" per se does not figure in any known catalogue of diseases. The resolution of the Board of Health is eminently proper that "hereafter no burisl permit be issued on the certificate of death from 'heart failure' when unaccompanied with the disease from which the heart failure occurred." For the protection of the public against the spread of contagious diseases, and for the prevention of the covering up of suspicious cases, a specification less broad than want of breath, heart failare or other misleading generality is absolutely essential.

The Duty of the Authorities.

Some of our contemporaries are insisting that Miss Borden must make it her first duty to hunt down her parents' murderer. Doubtless she would be more gratified than anyone else to have the assassin discovered, but is it not a good deal to demand that, having been the victim of the incompetence of the Fall River police, she shall undertake the work which they have botched and become detective and prosecutor? After sen months of wrongful imprisonment and incessant detraction, bas not Miss Borden earned the right to be let
